

FRANCHISE & DISTRIBUTION

OVERVIEW

Foulston Siefkin's franchise and distribution law attorneys have extensive experience in what has become the distribution method of choice for many companies in today's marketplace.

Representing franchisors, franchisees and franchise associations, Foulston Siefkin offers a full range of services in all phases of the franchise development, registration and negotiation process. We also assist manufacturers and distributors in complying with dealer relationship statutes and regulations.

Foulston Siefkin's franchise and distribution law attorneys advise and counsel clients on the full range of franchise and distribution law issues, including FTC and state franchise law registration and disclosure compliance, master franchising and joint ventures, franchise and dealership termination and transfers, combination and "co-branding" arrangements, exclusive territory and area of responsibilities, and brand management, including federal and state trademark and service mark registration and development of operational standards and manuals, to name a few. Foulston Siefkin's franchise and distribution attorneys also have extensive experience in representing clients in franchise and dealership mediation, arbitration, alternative dispute resolution, and litigation.

Additionally, Foulston Siefkin's broad range of legal experience in other important areas of the law is brought to bear for our franchise and dealership clients from local and regional systems to nationwide dealership and franchising. Foulston Siefkin attorneys have substantial experience in counseling our franchise and dealership clients in areas ranging from antitrust issues to trademark and trade secret problems, e-commerce, real estate and environmental law, federal, state, and local taxation, financing, bankruptcy, labor and employment, and contracting and supplier agreements/relationships.

Foulston Siefkin is committed to providing our franchise and dealership clients quality legal services in this growing and fast-paced area of the law.
