KANSAS LEGISLATIVE INSIGHTS NEWSLETTER | FEBRUARY 3, 2023

LEGISLATIVE WEEK FOUR

This week was highlighted by positive economic news and increased committee activity. The Department of Revenue announced January revenue was $1.04 billion. This is $55 million above the Consensus Revenue Estimating Group's estimates, or 5.6% over the projections. The week ended with Gov. Laura Kelly announcing a mega economic development project. On Thursday, the Senate debated the 2023-24 Joint House-Senate rules in HRC 5002. The joint rules passed 34-4. A group of House Republicans introduced a bill implementing term limits. The House Tax Committee held a hearing on the House version of the back-to-school sales tax holiday, which includes computers and clothing.

FISCAL NOTES

With a myriad of spending proposals and tax cuts introduced this session, the importance of the Division of Budget within the Department of Administration becomes vital in preparing the fiscal notes on various bills. Fiscal notes are prepared for bills which have a financial impact on the state. The public is generally not aware of this step in the legislative process unless it makes the news. This week, the fiscal note on the 5% flat tax legislation raised eyebrows with a potential $1.5 billion price tag by year three. Fiscal analysts said it would cost more than $3 billion over the first three years. There are numerous additional bills proposing tax cuts or exemptions with fiscal notes.

APEX II- COMPUTER CHIPS

Thursday, the State Finance Council authorized $304 million in tax incentives for the second largest economic development project in Kansas history. Kansas used the Attracting Powerful Economic Expansion Act (APEX) passed last February. It was successfully used last year to recruit Panasonic. Gov. Kelly announced a $1.8 billion expansion by Wichita-based Integra Technologies that will add 2,000 new jobs in Wichita. This includes the construction of a one-million square-foot semiconductor chip manufacturing plant in the Wichita area. Senate President Ty Masterson and House Speaker Dan Hawkins said the expansion of the current 100-employee company will have a positive impact on the Kansas economy and attract new families to Kansas.

COMMITTEES

Tuesday, the House Elections Committee voted to eliminate the three-day grace period for mail ballots postmarked by election day to be counted. The bill sets 7:00 p.m. on election day as a firm deadline for ballots to be received and counted. The vote was largely on political lines with Republicans supporting the 7:00 p.m. deadline. Rep. Brandon Woodard, D-Lenexa, made a clarifying motion that voters also have until 7:00 p.m. to put ballots into voting drop boxes.

Tuesday, the Senate Ways and Means Committee heard State Treasurer Steven Johnson advocate for the transfer of $1 billion to the state's rainy-day fund, which already has more than a $1-billion balance. Gov. Kelly's budget proposes half a billion. The State Treasurer stressed this would provide stability, and the interest on $1 billion would generate $45 million.

This week, the House Transportation Committee heard startling statistics from the Kansas Highway Patrol about excessive speeding on Kansas highways. According to the KHP, last year a record 3,285 tickets were written for drivers exceeding 100 miles per hour. This number has tripled since 2013. Drivers were clocked going 174 miles per hour in a construction zone and more than 200 miles per hour on the highway. The current fine is now $195. The bill proposes fines of $750 for a second offense and $1,000 for a third conviction within five years of two or more earlier offenses.

Thursday, the House Energy, Utilities, and Telecommunications Committee heard testimony from Justin Grady of the Kansas Corporation Commission Utilities Division. Grady presented a report including new data demonstrating a gradual decline in electric rates over the last six years. The report indicates Kansas was one of the few states in the Midwest to report a decline in average electric rates, according to the Energy Information Administration. Grady suggested the committee study energy consumption and the inverse relationship between residential electric bills and electric consumption. Regardless of the commission's report, the committee chair insisted upon a more thorough understanding of electricity costs in Kansas. Also, an interest group known as Kansans for Lower Electric Rates took issue with Grady's report, arguing there are one- million Evergy electric customers who would disagree with this report. You can access the report here.

The House Local Government Committee heard testimony on a bill prohibiting members of local units of government who have any financial interest in wind or solar farms from voting to approve construction of new facilities. After the hearing, the bill appears unlikely to pass.

Thursday, the Senate Commerce Committee heard SB 91, enacting the Kansas Film and Digital Media Industry Production Development Act, providing a tax credit, sales tax exemption, and loans and grants to incentivize film, video, and digital media production in Kansas. Additionally, the bill would establish a program to be administered by the Secretary of Commerce for the purpose of developing such production in Kansas. This will allow Kansas to be competitive with other states with similar incentives.

DEADLINES LOOMING NEXT WEEK

Monday was the last day for individual legislators to request bill drafts. Monday, Feb. 6, is the last day for non-exempt committees to request bill drafts. Next Friday, Feb. 10, is the last day for introduction of non-exempt committee bills. Turnaround day for consideration of bills by non-exempt committees in the House of Origin is Feb. 24. Next week's legislative calendar will be busy with hearings.
