KANSAS LEGISLATIVE INSIGHTS NEWSLETTER | FEBRUARY 8, 2019

2019 SESSION IS GAINING MOMENTUM

This week saw significant work on the budget, potential signs of progress on school finance, and the first significant tax policy debate on the Senate floor. Senate President Susan Wagle chaired the Senate Select Tax Committee that approved SB 22 last week. Sen. Wagle explained (“carried”) the bill during the debate in the Senate Chamber on Wednesday. During final action on Thursday, SB 22 passed by a margin of 26-14. This is one vote short of the two-thirds needed to override an expected veto by Governor Kelly.

Kansas Public Employees Retirement System (KPERs) was the other major issue debated in the Senate this week. SB 9, providing a $115 million payment to KPERs to reduce the growing unfunded liability, came before the full Senate. It was debated on Monday and passed 40-0 on Tuesday.

The House of Representatives debated and passed some non-controversial measures relating to spousal inheritance rights after divorce, environmental remediation, and tribal court judgments. HB 2044, a bill providing tax credits for certain purchases of goods and services from qualified vendors employing individuals who are blind or severely disabled, passed 115-1.

SCHOOL FINANCE UPDATE

Despite the freezing temperatures and severe winter weather, there was a thaw in the glacial ice surrounding the ongoing K-12 school funding dilemma during a meeting of the Senate Select Committee on Education Finance on Wednesday. Bill Brady, Schools for Fair Funding lobbyist, testified in favor of Governor Kelly’s education plan. Brady expressed a willingness by the plaintiff’s organization to drop its claims in the Gannon case (pending before the Kansas Supreme Court) if the Governor’s plan is passed without amendment. Last year the Kansas Supreme Court stated that if the Legislature added a yearly 1.44 percent increase over the five-year phase-in of extra funding, the constitutional funding provision would be satisfied.

After the Thursday Senate session, Sen. Susan Wagle’s Senate Select Committee on Federal Tax Code met briefly to introduce two education bills that split the Governor’s education budget. The first bill addresses the $92 million legislative response to the Gannon lawsuit. This amount is expected to satisfy the Supreme Court on adequate funding for K-12 public education. Prompt action is important to allow the Attorney General time to prepare the State's response to last year's Supreme Court Order. The other education bill addresses the balance of Governor Kelly's budget for the Department of Education.

BUDGET UPDATE

The House Appropriations Committee and the Senate Ways and Means Committee have divided into subcommittees to work on the Governor's budget and state agency requests. The January revenue numbers cloud and complicate the budget and tax policy debate. The Kansas tax-only revenue was $51.7 million less than the consensus estimate and $101 million below January 2018. Year-to-date, the state revenue is a little over $108 million above last fiscal year.

STATE OF THE JUDICIARY

On Wednesday, Chief Justice Lawton Nuss delivered the State of the Judiciary address from the Kansas Supreme Court chambers. The House leadership didn't extend an invitation to the Chief Justice to speak in the House chamber. The Chief Justice thanked the Legislature for providing funding for increased salaries for the judicial branch the last two sessions. However, he expressed his ongoing concern that Kansas' low pay is making retention of judicial branch employees difficult. Salaries for Kansas trial judges now rank last (51st) in the United States behind the other 49 states and the District of Columbia. Justice Nuss noted that Kansas is making significant progress on the electronic filing of lawsuits and motions.

HEALTHCARE AND FARM BUREAU

SB 32, introduced by the Kansas Farm Bureau, was amended and passed by the Senate Financial Institutions and Insurance Committee. The bill would exempt a nonprofit agricultural membership organization incorporated in Kansas on June 23, 1931 (i.e., the Kansas Farm Bureau), which provides healthcare benefit coverage for the payment of expenses to or for the members of the organization and their dependents from the jurisdiction of the Insurance Commissioner.

The bill suggests the healthcare benefit coverage provided by the Farm Bureau would not be considered insurance, notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary. SB 32 would permit the risk under such coverage to be reinsured by a company authorized to conduct reinsurance in Kansas.

So, if the Farm Bureau health benefit product is not an insurance contract, what is it? If a Farm Bureau subscriber has a claim (or complaint), who does he or she turn to? Obviously, not the Kansas Insurance Department.
