IMMIGRATION

OVERVIEW

The wide range of immigration issues are increasingly relevant to employers of all sizes and within every industry. The combination of our economy's demand for educated and skilled employees and the demographic changes occurring in our own domestic population has dramatically increased the demand and utilization of immigrants, non-immigrants, and other foreign nationals. At Foulston Siefkin, we can help guide your company and your employees (and families) through the ever-changing maze of immigration laws and regulations to help meet employer and employee needs. We have assisted employers and individuals with employment-based immigrant and non-immigrant petitions, family-based petitions, waiver applications, and change of status applications. In addition, we have advised employers with respect to various work-authorization issues and the avoidance of immigration related discrimination offenses. At Foulston Siefkin we feel that advanced planning is essential to navigate the numerous state and federal agencies (USCIS, DOL, SESA, DOS) in order to successfully implement a comprehensive and effective immigration plan. Our extensive experience in the labor and employment fields allows us to assist businesses in developing immigration compliance programs and basic in-house immigration petition procedures consistent with other employment laws.
