

KANSAS LEGISLATIVE INSIGHTS NEWSLETTER | FEBRUARY 10, 2023

COMMITTEE ACTION DOMINATES WEEK

Week 5 was highlighted by committee hearings covering a wide range of topics from agency budgets, education funding, regulating websites, tax cuts, wind energy, and water conservation. The week featured a contentious hearing on educational savings accounts allowing school choice and the Senate Assessment and Taxation approving $180 million in tax cuts. Also this week, both houses worked on agency budgets. Multiple committee hearings on bills were heard ahead of the Feb. 21 deadline for non-exempt committees to meet. Both the House Appropriations and Senate Ways and Means Committees heard at least 25 agency budget reports in addition to committee or subcommittee hearings on other agencies. After this week, there are only seven days left for non-exempt committees to consider non-exempt bills.

As deadlines approach, both chambers are starting to debate bills. The House went on general orders to debate bills on Tuesday and Wednesday. Thursday afternoon, the Senate debated and passed seven bills plus two on the consent calendar. Also, the Senate confirmed various appointments, including a 39-0 vote confirming Tony Mattivi as the next director of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation.

CONSENT CALENDAR

The use of the Consent Calendar permits non-controversial bills to move forward without amendment. If there are no objections after three days, the bills are advanced to a final vote, obviously expediting the legislative process. The two bills passed on the Senate Consent Calendar were reauthorization of a permanent life-size version of the “Ad Astra” sculpture on the state capitol grounds and a bill authorizing the Capitol Preservation Committee to develop and approve plans for a mural honoring the 1st Kansas (Colored) Voluntary Infantry Regiment.

SENATE TAX CUTS

The Senate Tax Committee approved $180 million in tax cuts for this year on Wednesday. The proposed cuts increase the standard deduction for individual income taxes to reflect increases on federally approved cost-of-living increases. Social Security benefits would be exempt from Kansas taxable income tax. The initial cost would be $147 million, with the cost projected to fall to $120 million in the next two years. Also, a net operating loss carry-forward tied to the pandemic effect on businesses providing $8 million in tax relief got a nod in Committee and the sales tax on custom butchering of livestock is recommended for elimination. Finally, the Committee approved exclusion of the value of manufacturers' coupons from the sales-taxable price of goods. This last item is projected to cost $1.7 million.

EDUCATIONAL SAVINGS ACCOUNTS FOR SCHOOL CHOICE APPROVED

After a contentious hearing on Monday, the House K-12 Education Budget Committee approved HB 2218 on Wednesday, allowing Kansas children to use state aid to attend a private school. The bill establishes the Sunflower Education Equity Act to provide education savings accounts for qualified students. The bill allows qualified elementary and secondary students to use 95% of state aid per student (approximately $5,100) to attend private school. The educational savings accounts would be phased in over four years starting with the 2023-24 school year with 2,000 private school students whose family income is less than or equal to 300% of the poverty level. The second year is set at 400% of poverty with 4,000 students. In year three, there is no income requirement with 8,000 children; and by year four, all Kansas students would be eligible. The Act would be administered by the State Treasurer at the direction of the Sunflower Education Equity Board created by the legislation. The 10-member board (nine voting members) would develop guidelines and could not promulgate rules and regulations. The bill passed along party lines. Public education advocates fear it will gut funding for public schools.

COMMITTEE HEARINGS

The House Federal and State Affairs Committee heard HCR 5005, urging Congress to call a convention of states to establish term limits for members of Congress. On Thursday, the Committee heard HB 2269, raising the age for the sale, purchase, and possession of tobacco products, including electronic cigarettes.

The House Water Committee heard a bill addressing the approaching crisis in the Ogallala Aquifer. The bill would require groundwater management districts to make a plan to conserve the aquifer and report their spending to the Legislature each year. Portions of the aquifer have only 10 to 20 years of water left. The current drought is bringing more attention to the issue. The Kansas Water Authority has recommended the state change its de facto policy of draining the aquifer for short-term gain. Agricultural organizations and groundwater management districts expressed support with minor suggestions.

The Senate Federal and State Affairs Committee approved SB 50 on Thursday, prohibiting restrictions on free speech in internet content. The bill sponsor, Sen. Mark Steffen, R-Hutchinson, says the bill targets are Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube, which entities claim remove conservative political statements. The committee vote was 4-4 with Chair Sen. Mike Thompson breaking the tie. The Attorney General's Office warned that two other similar laws in Florida and Texas are in litigation.

The House Tax Committee approved HB 2066, providing for a property tax exemption for up to two motor vehicles for firefighters and emergency medical service providers. The bill was amended to only apply to volunteers.

The Senate Assessment and Tax Committee will continue the hearing on SB 128, establishing the Ad Astra Opportunity Tax Credit to provide an income tax credit for taxpayers with eligible dependent children not enrolled in public school. The hearing was extended to allow conferees more time to testify.

The Senate Utilities Committee spent the entire week hearing proponent, opponent, and neutral testimony on SB 68. This proposed legislation would enact a state right of first refusal (ROFR) for incumbent electric transmission owners to construct, upgrade, own, and maintain an electric transmission line that has been approved for construction in a transmission plan of a regional transmission organization (RTO). An incumbent electric transmission owner could exercise the ROFR if the proposed electric transmission line would interconnect with facilities that are owned or proposed to be constructed by such incumbent electric transmission owner. There are approximately eight states surrounding Kansas who have adopted ROFR legislation. Generally, the proponents' arguments relate to concerns the current federally driven processes are constraining cooperation and creating cost overruns. Proponents also contend that the competitive process delays the implementation of projects. Conversely, opponents testified that competition creates significant cost savings on transmission projects, which benefits rate payers. The Committee completed its hearings and will be working the bill in the near future.
