KANSAS LEGISLATIVE INSIGHTS NEWSLETTER | FEBRUARY 22, 2019

After last week's deadline for non-exempt committee bill introductions, the Legislature has more than 560 bills so far this session to debate, pass, reject, or simply ignore. The new bills cover a wide range of topics from allowing teenagers to carry concealed firearms, elimination of state income tax on Social Security benefits, creating a Kansas Aerospace Commission, increasing registration fees for electric and hybrid vehicles, legalization of medicinal marijuana, raising the minimum wage, raising the motor fuels tax by $.06, to imposing a criminal penalty on owners who allow livestock to run at large. The bill declaring the polka as the state's official dance probably falls in the "simply ignore" category.

House and Senate Committees were busy trying to complete their work before the House of Origin deadline next week. The House Tax Committee heard HB 2261 proposing to reduce the current 6.5 percent sales tax on food sales by one percent. The Committee also held two days of hearings on Senate Bill 22 proposing to decouple Kansas from the Federal Income Tax Code. The House Energy, Utilities and Telecommunications Committee held two days of hearings on HB 2273 proposing to establish the Wind Generation Permit and Property Protection Act. HB 2273 is seen as unfriendly to wind energy and faces strong opposition from the wind energy industry. The House Appropriations Committee approved SB 9 authorizing the $115 million repayment to the Kansas Public Employees Retirement System (KPERs). SB 9 was debated on the House floor on Thursday and passed on Friday.

In floor action, the Senate debated SB 32 for three and one-half hours into Wednesday evening. SB 32 would allow the Kansas Farm Bureau to offer health coverage without covering pre-existing health conditions. It was a contentious debate with Democrats noting the proposal did not require renewal of policies if a member becomes sick. Opponents noted the Kansas Farm Bureau proposal would eliminate much of what is imposed on other insurers by the Kansas Department of Insurance. An effort to amend Medicaid expansion into the bill was ruled not germane. The bill passed 28-12.

For our readers who enjoy wine, the Senate Federal and State Affairs Committee passed SB 53 designating the Chambourcin as the state red wine grape and designating the Vignoles as the state white wine grape. The bill was placed on the Senate consent calendar for non-controversial bills.

In House floor action this week, HB 2105 revising the Kansas Limited Liability Company Act was passed and approved. It provides a comprehensive update of Kansas LLC laws recommended by the Kansas Bar Association.

Monday is the last day for committees to pass non-exempt bills. Next week, both the House and Senate will be on the floor debating bills before the next deadline and taking a short break March 1-5.

During each session, legislators feel the entire range of emotions from anger, to frustration, to satisfaction, to joy. There are poignant moments when everyone remembers what is really important. On Monday, Rep. Greg Lewis of St. John (House District 113) provided an emotional reminder to the House of Representatives. He shared that he experienced a medical problem on Christmas Eve and was subsequently diagnosed with a life-threatening illness. Because of his illness, Rep. Lewis must resign his seat. His parting advice to the House is to “enjoy each day, enjoy your family, your friends, your fellow legislators. . . but do not take yourself too seriously. Serve your District with a servant’s heart. This is the House of Representatives. This is not...this is not the house of self-interest. This is not the house of special interest. This is the People’s House; long may it serve the People and this Great State of Kansas.”
