

KANSAS LEGISLATIVE INSIGHTS NEWSLETTER | JANUARY 20, 2023

SECOND WEEK

The second week of the 2023 Legislature opened with a bipartisan display of harmony on tax legislation. There was some frustration over broadcasting rights for post-season high school activities, and discussions continued over ways to address flaws in the juvenile justice system. The House Appropriations Committee expressed frustration over the SPARK Committee procedures for distributing the $374 million in federal COVID-relief plan funding.

On Tuesday, the Legislature returned with committees continuing to accept bill introduction requests and receive informational briefings. Several committees started conducting hearings on bills. At the request of the Kansas Bar Association, Foulston attorney Tim O'Sullivan testified before the House Taxation Committee on probate legislation this week.

The Senate Utilities Committee provided an example of informational hearings. The Committee heard an informational overview on the oil and gas industry, and the Kansas Advanced Power Alliance gave an overview of the wind industry, with an emphasis on hydrogen as a potential workable energy alternative. The overview of the power industry was provided by Evergy, the Kansas Electric Cooperatives, and Kansas Municipal Utilities.

TAX HOLIDAY UPDATE

With more than $2 billion in surplus funds in the Kansas state treasury, there have been several tax cut bills introduced, including sales-tax exemption bills. This week, the Senate Assessment and Taxation Committee heard overviews on property tax and sales tax. On Thursday, the committee held hearings on three proposed sales tax holiday bills for certain school supplies. Apparently, there is bipartisan support for a sales tax holiday for school supplies, though there are differences over what constitutes a school supply with two versions of the measure including clothing and computers. The effective dates vary between 2023 and 2024. Senate Assessment and Taxation Committee Chair Sen. Caryn Tyson is optimistic the differences can be resolved. Senate Minority Leader Dinah Sykes shared her support as well.

GOP AGENDA

On Tuesday, Jan. 10, House and Senate Republicans unveiled their “Better Way” agenda. This week, House Speaker Dan Hawkins stressed the agenda is intended to provide a roadmap for the 2023 Legislative Session without addressing the specific details, leaving those to the various committees working on these issues. This marks a change in leadership style from the previous session when specific bills were recommended by leadership. The Better Way agenda includes many standard Republican topics such as school choice, taxes, the economy, energy, and law enforcement. Find the details here. Next week, Gov. Laura Kelly will deliver her State of the State address with her proposals for the future.

WEEK THREE ADDRESSES RUNOFF ELECTIONS, BROADCASTING RIGHTS, AND TAXES

In addition to the State of the State address, committees will be hearing more bills and briefings. The Senate Commerce Committee will review workforce development. Six tax bills are on the agenda for the Senate Assessment and Taxation Committee, including SB 7, which would reduce income tax rates for residents domiciled in a rural equity decline county. The Senate Education Committee will be hearing SB 13, addressing the right to broadcast post-season high school games, notwithstanding the Kansas State High School Activities Association signed an exclusive broadcast agreement for post-season activities. Senate Utilities will discuss Kansas Robo-Call regulations and light-mitigating technology systems bills for new and existing wind energy farms.

With 30 new House members, next week’s House schedule continues to focus on informational briefings in some committees. The House Tax Committee will be hearing five bills next week. Two measures address increasing the income limit for the income tax subtraction modification for social security income. The committee will also hear a sales tax exemption for purchases by a not-for-profit corporation operating a community theater.

The House Elections Committee will be hearing HB 2013, requiring a runoff election between the top two candidates whenever a candidate for a state office fails to receive a majority of the votes cast at a general or special election. A measure to require all advance voting ballots be returned by 7 p.m. on election day is also on the hearing schedule.
