PROFILE

Scott C. Palecki is a partner in the firm's healthcare law practice group, practicing extensively in the areas of business and healthcare. He has devoted his professional career to the representation of clients in the healthcare industry. Scott's clients span the spectrum of healthcare providers, including hospitals and health systems, rural and governmental hospitals, ambulatory surgery centers, nursing facilities, home health and hospice businesses, laboratories, and nearly every type of organization related to health care. He also works with physicians and physician practices assisting in myriad complex legal questions. Scott previously served as the practice group leader of the firm's healthcare practice group.

In addition to his in-depth private practice experience, Scott served as general counsel to a large national ambulatory surgery center and surgical hospital development and management company. During his tenure with the organization, he guided the company and its healthcare facilities through the regulatory complexities of the pandemic, coordinated national lobbying efforts, and helped procure pandemic-related relief. He is a nationally recognized proponent of value-based care and its expansion to the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) and the CMS Innovation Center.

Scott has developed long-standing relationships with healthcare clients and provides guidance and counsel on matters relating to operational, regulatory, reimbursement and compliance issues, including the Stark law, fraud and abuse, and physician compensation. He also provides counsel related to Medicare and Medicaid certification and reimbursement, managed care and individual and facility licensure, and has handled numerous matters concerning medical staff bylaws, peer review, and credentialing matters. Scott has handled many health care and corporate transactions including the development and syndication of numerous hospitals and ASCs throughout the United States, purchase and sale of hospital systems and critical access hospitals, ASCs, physician practices, and other ancillary health care businesses. Finally, Scott has assisted in several critical access hospital "replacement" projects.

Prior to serving as a general counsel, Scott has been recognized by Chambers USA as a leading healthcare and business attorney in the United States for his transactional practice and health-care related work. He was named by Best Lawyers® as the 2016 and 2025 Kansas City, Kansas, Health Care
